Mobileye

Vision chips and driving software sold per vehicle; robotaxis and robots are early bets

REVENUE FY2025	2026 GUIDANCE	EMPLOYEES	OWNER
$1.89B (+15%)[20]	$1.995–2.02B[14]	~4,130[2]	Intel, ~77% of shares[1]

1 KEY PARTNERS

- Intel: majority owner; technology licensing (incl. radar) and admin services[1]
- STMicro: makes EyeQ chips[2,3]
- Quanta: builds Mobileye's ECUs[3,4]
- Tier-1s (Aptiv, Magna, Valeo, ZF, Mobis…): integrate EyeQ into cameras and ECUs[2]
- Volkswagen Group: anchor co-development partner[5,6]
- ○ Lyft, Uber/MOIA, Holon: robotaxi deployment[7,8,9] GROWTH

2 KEY ACTIVITIES

- Design EyeQ chips (fabless)[2]
- Develop AI driving software[2,10]
- Crowdsource maps from 8M+ cars (REM)[2]
- Win and launch carmaker programs[11]
- ◇ Build its own US robotaxi service (from 2027)[12] FUTURE BET
- ◇ Humanoid robots (Mentee, acquired 2026)[1,13] FUTURE BET

3 KEY RESOURCES

- ~4,130 employees, ~85% in R&D, mostly in Israel[2]
- 250M+ vehicles built with EyeQ[14]
- Driving data and REM map database[2]
- 537 granted patents (US + EU)[2]
- ~$1.5B cash and investments[14]

4 VALUE PROPOSITIONS

- Low-cost, low-power vision chip for ADAS[15]
- One scalable platform from basic ADAS to hands-off driving[2,15]
- ○ Hands-free highway driving on a single chip[16] GROWTH
- Low-risk, proven supplier at scale[2,11]
- Transparent, formal safety model (RSS)[17]

5 CUSTOMER RELATIONSHIPS

- Multi-year program partnerships, locked in at design win[18,19,20]
- Deep co-development with OEMs (VW, Porsche)[6,10]
- Repeat awards from all top-10 customers[20]
- Ongoing link via map data and OTA updates[2]

6 CHANNELS

- Sold mostly through Tier-1 suppliers[2,3]
- Direct ECU supply for advanced systems (e.g., Mahindra)[19]
- Carmaker tenders (RFQs)[11]
- ○ Ride-hail apps for robotaxi (Lyft, Uber, Moovit)[7,8,12] GROWTH

7 CUSTOMER SEGMENTS

- Tier-1 suppliers: pay Mobileye and sell into carmakers (4 = ~74% of revenue)[2,21]
- 50+ global carmakers: the end customers who choose Mobileye[2]
- Chinese carmakers: growing volume, lower price[21,22]
- ○ Robotaxi and shuttle operators (MOIA, Holon)[9,20] GROWTH
- ◇ Riders of its own robotaxi service (from 2027)[12] FUTURE BET

8 COST STRUCTURE

- R&D: $1.15B net in FY2025 (~60% of revenue)[20,23]
- Stock comp ($277M) and amortization of acquired intangibles[23]
- ◇ Robotaxi fleet and operating costs (analyst view)[12] FUTURE BET
- Cost of revenue: EyeQ chips (STMicro) and ECUs (Quanta)[3,23]
- Israeli R&D grant offsets ~$200M of R&D (2026)[1,24]

9 REVENUE STREAMS

- EyeQ chip sales via Tier-1s (~92% of revenue)[3]
- ○ Cloud-Enhanced ADAS (higher profit per unit)[2] GROWTH
- ◇ Robotaxi rides (target ~$125k per vehicle/yr)[22] FUTURE BET
- ○ SuperVision and premium ADAS systems, per vehicle[2,23] GROWTH
- ◇ Map and OTA software upgrades (planned)[2] FUTURE BET

UNIT ECONOMICS
Avg. price ~$48.5 per system (Q2 2026). Adjusted gross margin 68% (FY2025).[20,24]

LATEST RESULTS
Q3 2026 revenue $492M (–2% YoY). Full-year guidance raised to $1.995–2.02B.[14]

ACCOUNTING NOTE
The $3.8B goodwill writedown (Q1 2026) is non-cash. It drives the GAAP loss but is not an operating cost.[25]
